Theodore, the oldest son of the new immigrants, became the translator for his father. When he married Lena Moorman who was keeping house for her uncle Father John Waelterman, pastor of St. Mary's, he was 32 years old. They purchased the farm West of the family home. This farm was later known as the Henry Brand farm. They lived here eight years, but it was too small and Theodore was unable to purchase more adjoining property. He therefore sold that place and purchased the farm North of the family home on which his son, Ted, now lives.
